ALLERGY GUIDE - HOW TO USE

Every item we sell has specific allergy data depending on the ingredients. There are 14 main allergen groups.
The chart includes all items, and where necessary, recipes if listed as that on the menu.

If an item has a red box, it means that there is an allergen present. An allergen is determined by the manufacturer's ingredients

If a manufacturer states that there is a 'high chance of contamination', this has been listed as red, so customer must avoid.

Most items are manufactured in an environment that contains certain allergens. This is common industry language.
If this has been listed as the case, then the ingredient has been marked as clear.

We should, however, advise the customer of this. It then becomes their choice as to whether to take the risk.
Always put allergy decisions in the customers hands!

When handling allergies, please be considerate of customer needs, and do not get frustrated if they ask multiple questions.

They just want a safe place to eat without the risk of harm.

Allergies can be as mild as itching and slight discomfort, upto throat swelling, breathing difficulties, and in extreme cases, death.

A GOOD PHRASE TO USE IS:

Whilst every precaution is taken whilst preparing your food to standard, there is always the slight risk of contamination, therefore we cannot 100% guarantee that your item is allergy free'

STEPS FOR PREPARING AN ALLERGY ORDER:

Gather all tools that will be required in the making of the product tongs, scoops etc.

Wash all items thoroughly using Anti Bacterial washing up liquid.

Wash your hands thoroughly.

One person to be in control of the food preparation as this will minimise the risk of contamination.

Ensure new packaging is used from the box, rather than in shop. This will help to prevent airborne contamination.

Label product as 'ALLERGY' and pack in a completely separate bag. Label bag as ALLERGY ORDER'
